

About Quokka

The quokka is about the size of a cat or rabbit.

It has a long skinny tail that sometimes get the quokka mistaken for a rat.

But once you see their big black noses and smiling mouths you won't think quokkas look ratty at all.

Fun Fact 1

Mostly active at night, preferring to rest or sleep in the shade during the day.

Fun Fact 2

Quokkas do not tend to fight with their own over food or mates, and are generally peaceful in their groups.

Places where we can find Quokkas

In Western Australia, they are spotted at -

- Rottnest Island
- Bald Island
- Melbourne Zoo

Paint Your Quokka

